

I believe this change is not necessary and the present system is fine the way it is. Amateur radio needs to prevent encroachment on to the bands below 30 meg from amateur radio operators licensed as only as a Tech. The ability to get on bands below 30 meg should be used as an incentive for the Techs to upgrade to the General license. The rules should not be relaxed anymore from what it already is.